Public-private conservation work topic for Farm Foundation Forum

OAK BROOK, IL Oct. 24, 2017: Federal and state entities have for decades provided programs to encourage soil and water conservation practices. Do opportunities exist today to better leverage those public programs with private initiatives to make greater progress toward conservation goals? That is the question that will be explored at the Farm Foundation® Forum on Wednesday, Nov. 1, 2017.

"This Forum asks the question: Is there a new paradigm for conservation work?" says Farm Foundation President Constance Cullman. "We will explore some of the private initiatives to conserve and protect soil and water resources, and examine how, when combined with federal and state programs, such efforts might yield more comprehensive conservation goals.

"We want to identify the challenges and opportunities of public-private collaboration. Who benefits? What hurdles exist? What goals could be met? What are the policy challenges?" Cullman says. "As Congress begins work on the next Farm Bill, it is a great time to examine this issue."

The Forum begins at 9 a.m. EDT in the Holeman Lounge at the National Press Club, 529 14th Street NW, Washington, D.C. A free live audiocast will also be available.

Forum panelists will provide perspectives on conservation policies, as well as options for public-private collaborations. Presenting perspectives will be:

- Jonathan Coppess, Director of the Gardner Agricultural Policy Program at the University of Illinois;
- John Piotti, President and CEO, American Farmland Trust;
- Josette Lewis, Associate Vice President of Ecosystems/Sustainable Agriculture, Environmental Defense Fund; and
- Laura Peterson, Head of Federal Government Relations for Syngenta.

Cullman will moderate the discussion. After comments by the panelists, the floor will be opened for questions and discussion.

There is no charge to participate in the Nov. 1 Forum, but registration is requested.

- Register HERE if you plan to attend the Forum in person at the National Press Club.
- Register HERE to participate in the live audiocast. Audiocasting is made possible by a grant from Farm Credit.

Who should participate in the Forum: People with an interest in agricultural, food and rural policy, including members of Congress, congressional staff, executive branch officials, industry representatives, NGO representatives, Embassy representatives, academics and members of the media.

The Forum: Farm Foundation organizes these public forums to engage all stakeholders in informed dialogue on food, agricultural and rural policies. Participants examine current policies, explore and analyze alternative policy options, and give voice to new proposals.

Audio from the session will be posted on the Farm Foundation website. Presentations and audio files from past Forum sessions are also available at the website.
