Challenges in meeting water quality goals topic for Farm Foundation Forum

OAK BROOK, IL Jan. 18, 2018:The complexities of achieving water quality goals across broad geographic areas will be the topic for the Farm Foundation® Forum on Tuesday, Jan. 23, 2018. Specifically, panelists participating in the Forum will examine the role of conservation practices in making progress toward water quality goals within and across watersheds.

The Forum begins at 9 a.m. EST in the Holeman Lounge at the National Press Club, 529 14th Street NW, Washington, D.C. A free live audiocast is also available.

“Conservation practices within a watershed may need to be coupled with similar or different actions in other watersheds—even though both are working toward the same water quality goals,” notes Megan Provost, Farm Foundation’s Vice President of Policy and Programs. “More work is needed to better understand the compatibility of practices across watersheds, as well as the challenges those practices may present to individual landowners and agricultural producers.”

Forum panelists providing perspectives on these issues include:

- Jimmy Bramblett, Deputy Chief for Programs, USDA’s Natural Resources Conservation Service,
- Dennis Nuxoll, Vice President of Federal Government Affairs for Western Growers Association,
- Barry Gold, Environment Program Director with the Walton Family Foundation, and
- Fred Yoder, Ohio farmer and co-chair of Solutions from the Land.

Farm Foundation President Constance Cullman will moderate the discussion. After comments by the panelists, the floor will be opened for questions and discussion.

There is no charge to participate in the Jan. 23 Forum, but registration is requested.
